REED AND SCHNADER PREDICT A SMASHING VICTORY FOR PARTY

Candidates Express Optimism After Tour of Nine Counties

BLAST THE DEMOCRATS

Claim 1932 Platform Has Been Totally Ignored By the Party

GREENSBURG, Oct. 20—Predictions of a smashing Republican triumph at the election of November 6 were made yesterday by U. S. Senator David A. Reed, candidate for re-election, and Attorney General William A. Schnader, nominee for Governor, as the culmination of a trek through the cities and towns of Westmoreland county.

Encouraged by favorable receptions at rallies in nine communities the candidates were quick to claim victory two weeks in advance of the election. Reed and Schnader were joined in their optimistic view of the political situation by Daniel V. Crowell, chairman of the Republican County Committee of Westmoreland.

"Of course, we are going to win this election," Senator Reed declared. "There may have been a few bad spots in certain sections of the State, but party differences have been ironed out in those places and we will win easily. The meetings have been most encouraging and there is no pessimism among the leaders of the 67 counties concerning the outcome of the election.

"I believe the only question is the size of the pluralities by which our candidates will win."

"In every county I visited," declared Schnader, "our meetings were crowded and our message was received with an enthusiasm which seemed to leave no doubt of a stirring Republican victory next month.

"Even in districts which were one time regarded as doubtful, there was an obvious swing to our ticket as the difference between the constructive platform of the Republican Party and the misrepresentations of the Democratic statements became apparent.

"Our tours, it is evident, are fruitful by giving the voters opportunity to contrast the experienced candidates on the Republican ticket with opponents, whose principal message is that they are running for office in other men's shoes.

"Throughout the State it is becoming daily more evident that the people realize how few issues vital to the people of Pennsylvania are being presented by the Democratic candidates."

"I think the campaign has reached a point beyond partisanship," Reed declared. "Our appeal must be made to Democrats as well to Republicans.

"I am encouraged to find responses from many Democrats who are dissatisfied with their platform and who are daily waiting the opportunity to cast their votes for the Republican ticket. The Democratic platform has been thrown to the four winds, dissipated into thin air.

"Everything promised in the platform adopted by the Democratic National Convention in Chicago in 1932 has been ignored and the Democrats of the Jefferson-Cleveland-Wilson type have not forgotten these broken pledges.

"The victory on November 6 will be a triumph for American common sense, rather than a victory for the Republican Party."

"I am for supporting the Federal Government in everything that leads towards recovery and the good of Pennsylvania," Schnader declared, "and I am opposed to supporting it in things that retard recovery and hurt Pennsylvania.

"We must do the job ourselves, under men who know their work, not those who try to slide into office on someone's else reputation.

"We developed our oil business and our other activities in Pennsylvania by ourselves and we must restore them by ourselves.

"The candidates who have seized control of the Democratic Party machinery in Pennsylvania are telling you that the way to restore prosperity is to elect them as representatives of Roosevelt.

"If you believe you're supporting Roosevelt and recovery by voting for Guffey and his crowd you're wrong. Don't think you are helping yourselves by voting for Earle, either.

"Recovery can't be achieved in Pennsylvania by voting for men who have no real interest in Pennsylvania or Pennsylvanians, whose only interest is to deliver the State over to Farley and his National Democratic machine.

"The real Democrats of Pennsylvania know that the people masquerading today as Democratic leaders have no interest in Pennsylvania except as far as it means patronage and personal advantage to themselves."

Jack Reynolds

Here is Jack Reynolds, attendant of a filling station in Indianapolis, who declares he recognized Mrs. Berry V. Stoll, Louisville, Ky., society woman, in the back seat of an automobile which was driven into his station four days after she was kidnaped. Reynolds told police the woman, whose head was bandaged, was accompanied by three men who asked the way to Chicago.

ARREST SON FOR NOT SUPPORTING MOTHER

Wilmer Eisenbrey, of Morrisville, to Be Tried Before The Court

THE SCHOOL RECORD

MORRISVILLE, Oct. 20 — Charged with non-support of his mother, Wilmer Eisenbrey, of Central avenue, was committed to the Bucks County Jail in default of bail when arraigned before Justice of the Peace William H. Kunsman here. The court will dispose of the case later.

Eisenbrey, it was testified at the trial, made an agreement some time ago to pay his mother $4 a week towards her support. Later he is said to have consulted a lawyer and secured a reduction on the payments to $3 per week, but instead of doing this it was stated that Eisenbrey only paid his mother $2 a week for a few weeks, and then discontinued the payments entirely.

He was arrested on a warrant by Constable William H. Stradling, and was taken to Doylestown by the same officer.

Morrisville schools have an attendance record of 97 per cent for this year so far, it was reported by Supervising Principal Manoah R. Reiter, at a recent meeting of the School Board here. The percentage of attendance in the high school was exceptionally high with an average of 97.3, the report indicated.

The principal's report also stated that work in the organizing of the high school orchestra and band was progressing under the leadership of Miss Roberta Holloway and Henry Filer, faculty members in charge of these respective activities.

The Student Council, under the leadership of Martin C. Wright, was reported to be very active, and constructive results are expected from the governing body this year. It was stated by the principal that the school spirit and the interest of the student body had shown a decided increase because of the activities of its student representative system.

"Romance of Old Silver" Told Of by L. Slatoff

YARDLEY, Oct. 20—A feature of the Yardley Civic Club social meeting in the club rooms, Thursday, was an exhibit of antiques by members of the club.

Mrs. Algernon S. Cadwallader, president, introduced Lester Slatoff, Trenton, N. J., who spoke on the "Romance of Old Silver." He gave a history of the various stages in the progress of silver making, and told the value of a number of articles exhibited by the club members.

As delegates to the county federation meeting to be held in Newtown on October 26th, Mrs. Cadwallader appointed Mrs. Francis B. Barnett, and Mrs. Harvey J. Funk. Any member wishing to attend may secure reservation by communicating with Mrs. Funk.

Tea was served by the hostess committee: Mrs. Fred W. Beans, Mrs. A. J. Cadwallader, Mrs. H. Linn Bassett, Mrs. Mahlon B. Knowles, Miss Nellie Girton, Mrs. Charles B. Hayes.

The next meeting to be held on November 1st, will be in charge of Mrs. Alfred A. Danser, chairman of the legislative committee. This will be the annual meeting for the payment of dues

FREE BRIDGES BETWEEN PENNA. AND NEW JERSEY

Senator Clarence J. Buckman, of Bucks County, as a legislator, has obtained for Bucks County, more in the way of material benefits from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, than had been obtained for it previously in the entire period that had elapsed since the construction by the State of the Delaware and Lehigh Canal, in the early part of the 19th century.

One of Senator Buckman's outstanding accomplishments has been the freeing of the bridges between Bucks County and the State of New Jersey from toll. This required years of work, not only in the Legislative Halls in Harrisburg, but also in the New Jersey Legislature. It necessitated his presence during Sessions of the New Jersey Legislature and at the meetings of important committees. He won his case on both sides of the Delaware, with the result that these bridges are now free to all traffic.

Senator Buckman's endeavors were rewarded by his election as Chairman of the Joint Commission for the Elimination of Toll Bridges between the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey, a position which he still holds. The following bridges have been freed:—

Bridge	Date Purchased	Purchase Price	Renewals and Betterments	Reconstruction	Total
Trenton, Lower	7-12-18	$ 240,000	$ 66,071	$ 699,123	$ 1,005,194
Trenton, Upper	11-14-28	250,000	138,928		388,928
Yardley	12-21-22	67,500	57,963		125,463
Wash. Crossing	4-25-22	40,000	59,872		99,872
New Hope	12-31-19	225,000	61,149		286,149
Centre Bridge	11- 6-25	10,000	1,894	264,690	276,584
Lumberville	7-21-32	25,000	1,060		26,060
Pt. Pleasant	1- 6-19	30,000	7,760		37,760
Uhlerstown	6-28-29	45,000	835	113,210	159,045
Upper Black Eddy	6-28-29	45,000	20,795	101,171	166,966
Riegelsville	8- 3-21	50,000	31,067		81,067
TOTALS		$ 1,027,500	$ 447,394	$ 1,178,194	$ 2,653,088

To give some idea as to how the freeing of these bridges has benefited the people of Bucks County, a glance at the following figures will show the number of cars which have passed over them from the date of purchase to June 30, 1934. At a nominal toll of twenty-five cents this would amount to $23,206,733.75. This stupendous sum has been a saving to the motoring public in general and a large percentage of it to the people of Bucks County.

Bridge	Traffic Over Each Bridge Since Purchase	Tolls Saved To Motoring Public
Trenton, Lower	57,464,455	$14,366,113.75
Trenton, Upper	8,986,657	2,246,664.25
Yardley	6,273,452	1,568,363.00
Washington Crossing	3,039,129	759,782.25
New Hope	9,212,787	2,303,196.75
Centre Bridge	1,261,686	315,421.50
Lumberville	54,544	13,636.00
Point Pleasant	1,175,851	293,962.75
Uhlerstown	795,208	198,802.00
Upper Black Eddy	953,894	238,473.50
Riegelsville	3,609,272	902,318.00
	92,826,935	$23,206,733.75

Senator Buckman has been responsible for conserving and fined to the Bridges which connected Bucks County and the State of New Jersey. When the cities of Philadelphia and Camden needed Legislation permitting the building of a bridge between those two great cities, they turned to Senator Buckman, who in the Session of 1925 presented a bill providing for the completion by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey of a Bridge over the Delaware River. This Act was approved, May 6th, 1925; and the great Bridge erected under that legislation is a fitting monument to his ability, experience and untiring efforts.

In Conjunction With Meeting of Cornwells Parent-Teacher Ass'n.

DR. WAGNER SPEAKS

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Oct. 20.—The regular monthly meeting of Cornwells Parent-Teacher Asso. was held Thursday evening in the Bensalem Township high school. Mrs. Roscoe Perkins presided. The usual business meeting consisting of the reading of minutes and reports of various committees took place. A meeting of the county council at Warwick School, Nov. 10th, was announced. Delegates were appointed and all were urged to attend.

At the close of the business meeting a Red Cross pageant, consisting of 18 colorful scenes was presented. Parents, teachers and children took part. The closing scene was beautiful. It was the living picture of this year's American Red Cross poster.

BUCKS COUNTY COMING THROUGH WITH FUNDS

Half-Way Mark in Fund-Raising Campaign Has Been Passed

MUCH ENTHUSIASM

"Bucks County is coming through with their goal for the boys," said Boy Scout Campaign Organization Chairman William Burgess, of Morrisville, as he discussed the Bucks County Council Maintenance Campaign at the bi-monthly Executive Board Meeaing last evening in the Doylestown Inn. "We have passed the half-way mark," reported Finance Committee Chairman Edmund H. Lovett, of Yardley, in his presentation of the latest reports of the campaign. The total reached, with less than half of the reports "in," at this time, totals $4064.10, or 53% status in relation to the objective of $7600.

All of the section captains have been working hard. Three captains have "put over" their sections: Dr. A. J. Strathie, of Newtown; A. R. Hendricks, of Sellersville; and George Knoll, of Andalusia.

Vice-President Dr. A. J. Strathie, speaking at the board meeting, said: "We are finding in the campaign of this year a much better spirit than in our former campaigns. The captains are all enthusiastic over the outlook. We feel quite certain that scouting in our council will progress on an even finer level with the relief of our scout executive from secretarial duties, so that he will be able to take care of his executive responsibilities. With the achieving of the balance of $3,535.90 we need, we will have the opportunity to render the necessary service to our communities, and their leaders. Our aim is to make Scouting available to every boy of Cub, Scout, Seascout and Rover age."

The exceptional exhibits at the Doylestown Fair were the arrangement of the Educational Committee, Chairman Dr. A. J. Strathie, of Newtown. Neighborhood Commissioner Harold D. R. Crumrine, of Langhorne, a member of the committee, directed the dramatizations before the grandstand, portraying the ideals of the Scouting movement. Another member of the committee, Scoutmaster Gilbert W. Carlin, of Chalfont, supervised the decorating, and made the attractive signs. The lighting effects by Field Commissioner George Dorfner, and the stage managing by Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Walter Carwithen, of Doylestown No. 2, made possible the success of the presentations. The interest of the units in the fair exhibits was shown by Dr. Strathie's report of those having already made reservations for the 1935 Fair: Bristol No. 1, automobiling; Carversville, camping; Doylestown No. 1, cooking; Doylestown No. 2, electricity; New Hope, farm layout and building arrangement;

It also asked for extradition of Dr. Egon Kvaternik, Pavelitch's secretary. Pavelitch is charged with being the head of the terrorist gang which assassinated King Alexander.

TO ARRAIGN HAUPTMANN NEXT WEEK

Flemington, N. J., Oct. 20 — Bruno Richard Hauptmann was New Jersey's prisoner today, occupant of cell No. 1 in the Flemington jailhouse, the first step of what Jersey officials hope will be a speedy but fair trip to the electric chair at Trenton.

Leaning backward in their plans to give the New York carpenter every courtesy in their power, New Jersey officials changed their plans at the eleventh hour and announced Hauptmann would not be arraigned today on the charge for which he stands indicted — murder of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr. Because he is already indicted and lodged in a jail here, with the consent of the Governor of New York State, Hauptmann will be held in his cell until next week for the final arraignment, which in New York state, would be the first step in legal procedure.

Pale and shaking, more discouraged than at any other time since his arrest, exactly one month ago, Hauptmann was whisked out of the Bronx county jail in New York State last night at the climax of a last ditch fight which his counsel made to save him from prosecution in New Jersey.

His counsel's plea for a new hearing on an unsuccessful habeas corpus writ, was swept aside by five judges of the Appellate Division one hour and a half after they heard the arguments. Hauptmann was not in the courtroom.

On arrival here Hauptmann was taken immediately to a cell. Once there he shouted: "I swear to God I didn't do it."

WANT CONCENTRATION CABINET

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, Oct. 20.—Jugoslavia cleared the way today for a concentration cabinet to straighten out the internal difficulties arising from the slaying of King Alexander. Premier Uzonovitch and his cabinet resigned, permitting the Regency Council freedom in the selection of a government "better able to deal with the situations resulting from the assassination of our King." The resignation was not unexpected.

MRS. GRUPP LEFT ENTIRE ESTATE OF HER LATE HUSBAND

Will Filed for Probate in The Register's Office At Doylestown

VALUED AT $5,500.00

Frank Flum, Bristol, Named Administrator of His Brother's Estate

Anna Grupp, Bensalem, wife of the late Otto Grupp, inherits the estate of her late husband amounting to $5500, according to the will of the deceased which has been filed for probate at Doylestown.

The $3100 estate of Ada Parker, South Langhorne, is bequeathed with reservations to her husband.

A County Seat resident, Theodore E. DuBois, was named one of the heirs in the will of Mary E. Constantine, who died at her home on North Main street, Doylestown, October 7, leaving an estate of $8500. Real estate holdings were valued at $5500.

According to her will, probated in the Register of Wills office, at Doylestown, the County Seat barber will inherit $3000, the household goods, and have the right to live in his apartment rent free for three months. In the original will written October 14, 1932, Mr. DuBois was bequeathed the sum of $6000, the household possessions and named executor. But according to a codicil, dated October 3—four days before her death—Isaac J. Vanartsdalen was named the executor, and the bequest concerning DuBois altered.

Providing an annual income for the Doylestown Emergency Hospital, Mrs. Constantine directed that the sum of $2000 should be placed in a trust fund in the Doylestown Trust Company and the interest turned over to the hospital.

Individual bequests follow: $1000 to Mrs. Mary Walton, Fountainville; $500 to Naomi Fretz, of Skillman, N. J., her husband's former nurse; $500 to Mary Krout, of Hatboro; bequests of $580 each to Charles and Elmer White, of Hatboro, and Edwin White, of Doylestown.

A brother, Albert White, was bequeathed $100.

Thomas Y. McCarty, well known Nockamixon township resident, who left an estate of $11,293.03, according to his will, directed that a $600 trust fund be created in the Doylestown Trust Company, and the sum of $100 be paid annually to the pastor of St. John's Roman Catholic Church at Haycock. The testator's personal estate was valued at $8293.93.

A grandson, Hubert McCarty, was bequeathed $200, and a granddaughter, Isabella McCarty, will inherit $2000. The residue of the estate will be divided into equal shares among the children. An inventory filed in the estate placed it at the value of $8293.03.

Joseph Engle, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Everett Fretz, Doylestown, September 15, directed that his estate be divided between his children, Lillie C. Engle, Adelaide B. Good, both of Hatboro, and Mary D. Hart and Ella M. Fretz, both of Doylestown. The latter two were named executors.

In the estate of Laura Levy of Trumbauersville, letters of administration were granted to Charles H. Levy, amounting to $350. Letters of administration in the estate of Anna Rush, of Plumstead, were granted to Jacob and William M. Rush, amounting to $4400. William R. Kepler was granted the letters of administration in the estate of Oliver Kepler, of Doylestown, a brother, amounting to $650. In the estate of Elizabeth S. Hogeland, of Upper Southampton, letters of administration were granted to Carrie H. Yerkes, amounting to $1000.

Sue K. Redfern was named the sole heir of the $10,000 estate of her husband, John H. Redfern, of Morrisville.

Your Health:—

"Diseases of the heart, considered as a group, are the leading cause of death today," says a bulletin of the Bucks County Medical Society, which is today celebrating Pennsylvania Health Day, an annual observance throughout the state, sponsored by the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania.

"Like the motor of an engine, the heart requires care and consideration," continues the bulletin, "yet most people are more or less indifferent to the causes that may affect this vital and fragile bit of machinery. Throughout life there are many contributory ailments to heart disease; sicknesses of child, excesses in eating, over-exercising and drinking which eventually and often too early take their toll of lives by way of the heart."

In celebration of Pennsylvania Health Day there will be radio broadcasts, public addresses by qualified doctors and other modes of presenting to the people of the State the benefits of preventive medicine as a way to health."

JOIN THE RED CROSS

The annual membership drive of the American Red Cross is again under way and this is one drive in which nobody is asked twice to join, nor should a second invitation be necessary.

The Red Cross is so prompt in answering the call of distress in every major disaster that most people have come to regard the service it renders as a sending automatic like the response of the firefighters when the alarm sounds.

But the Red Cross is financed entirely by membership. For one dollar you are a member for one year, and nowhere else does a dollar buy so much. America needs the Red Cross and it hasn't a single failure to its record. When the call comes the Red Cross responds.

The Red Cross is calling for members to enable it to carry on its work for another twelve months. Join.

WHAT MIGHT BE

Americans grumble so much about street and sidewalk congestion that it is a relief to be reminded occasionally of the horrible fates we have escaped. More than a crumb of comfort is furnished by visioning the conditions that would exist were some of the modern time saving and congestion eliminating devices taken away.

Picture our town, for instance, without telephones. There would be millions of messages to deliver some how. If they were carried by hand, the messenger boys would double be piled in business streets. In snowdrifts, roof high. And think what would happen if all the senders turned out to see why their messages had not reached their destination.

If there is a moment's delay in making a telephone connection, the subscriber is loud in protest against inefficient service. He might not be so quick to complain if he realized that without the telephone he might have to make the connection on foot.

Imagine, if you can, the confusion and annoyance that would be occasioned by trying to take care of modern traffic on the narrow cattle roads and unpaved city streets which the pioneer motorist used in the absence of anything better.

All in all the nation, even in the most congested centers of population, makes fairly good progress and communication and transportation systems operate with surprising expedition under all the circumstances.

Being unpopular isn't so pleasant but it saves you a lot of money.

Kansas women are reported to be deserting bridge for poker. Maybe the state's homicide rate will drop.

"GIRL IN THE FAMILY"

BY BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XXII

"When's Wallace coming back to town?"

"In about ten days. I had a letter from him this morning. Allen." Ten days, and she would have to face Wallace. Have to tell him that she had made a mistake about her feelings toward him and give him back his ring and his watch bracelet . . . and the knowledge that she was hurting and humiliating him would hurt her too. The thought of it worried her more now than the anticipation of the storm that would break over her head when she told the family that she had broken her engagement.

Yes, it had been everything just too, for the time had come already when she would have to stand up under the family's disapproval of her jilting of Wallace. She was going to have to think for herself instead of letting them think for her as they always had done.

"They'll say that it's nothing less than criminal to break my engagement after it's been announced in the newspapers," she said, thinking things out. "They'll tell me that I'm publicly disgracing Wallace, and I suppose that's what I shall be doing, as a matter of fact—but that's Aunt Edna's fault because she announced the engagement without saying a word to me about it."

She knew that she would never be able to dare point that out to Aunt Edna without starting a family battle. For usually she and Lutie and Uncle Worthy thought and acted together like one person, and whatever one of them did was perfect in the eyes of the other two whenever an argument arose that involved Susan or John. The three older people stood shoulder to shoulder then, as solid as a stone wall.

"Why don't you find something to do and get out of the house part of the time?" Allen asked. "I should think you'd enjoy it, Susan. I've often wondered why you didn't."

"Well, I have, too," said Susan. "I've wanted to for years, but they've always been dead set against it. They seemed to think I'd lose caste if I turned into a working girl. They're very old-fashioned about things like that. They've never been out in the world much—and now I couldn't go out and get a position because they really need me at home. They can't afford to keep Anna any longer, and I'm going to have to take over her work from now on."

The waiter came to take away the coffee service and the untouched toast, cold now with the butter and cinnamon and sugar standing up in little ridges on it.

"I don't know who'd give me any work to do, anyhow," Susan went on when the table was empty except for an ashtray and Allen's package of cigarettes. "I've never touched a typewriter or an adding machines in my life. But the very thought of them—the thought of getting into some sort of business office—always has fascinated me. I've asked my father a dozen times to let me go to business college, but—"

"But what?"

"Well, I've been going around with Wallace for a long time, and my father always pointed out to me that if I married him I wouldn't have any use for a knowledge of office work. That was true, of course."

"How long have you known that bird?"

"Almost two years."

"And you're sure you weren't in love with him any of that time, Susan?" His steady gaze was still on her face and Susan could see how anxiously he was waiting to hear her answer. He didn't seem to be sure of her as he had been the night before when he had drawn her into his arms and told her, with all the confidence in the world, that he knew she cared for him.

"No, I never felt sure of myself with him. I mean that I always had a suspicion that love was a great deal stronger and more thrilling than anything I felt for him. I didn't like to let him kiss me, and he knew it. He told me, just the night when he went away, that I was a very chilly sort of person."

"But you would have married him if it hadn't been for last night, wouldn't you?"

Susan's shoulders went up in a shrug. "I suppose so," she answered truthfully. "I'd reached the point where I thought I could not stand living at home a day longer. And then I was flattered by his liking me, and I knew he'd be what's known as 'a good husband.' You've heard of girls marrying for a home, haven't you?"

Allen nodded.

"Well, that's what I was going to do, I think. But now I wouldn't marry him if he owned the best house in town and a camp in the Adirondacks and a Palm Beach houseboat! I'll tell him so, too, when he comes home, but I'll have to do it in my own way, Allen. You'll have to let me tell the family about it at my own time—when Wallace is really out of the picture."

"You talk like a child, Susan! They can't make you marry a man if you don't want to." Allen jerked his chair back with an impatient movement and got up. "The good old days when girls were under their elders' thumbs have been gone for a long time."

"I know that just as well as you do." Susan tried to defend herself. "But if I let Wallace go and they find out about it they'll just be terribly disagreeable about it and they'll try to get him back probably. They'll tell him I don't know my own mind or something like that."

"If you let Wallace go! That's good," said Allen, plainly angry now as he walked out of the dining room beside her.

"When I let him go," Susan corrected herself quickly. "Please don't doubt me like this, Allen."

They walked home slowly, arm in arm, their shoulders touching as they moved. But something—his doubt of her—had come between them. Susan could almost feel it, like a curtain that had been dropped between them. She tried to brush it aside, to get back to the understanding and the intimacy of the night before.

"Tell me about yourself, Allen," she said as they walked along out of the hum and the lights of the downtown district into the dark residence streets of the North Side. "Not about your job, but about you—when you were a little boy out west, and where you went to school, and so on."

"I didn't live out in New Mexico when I was a kid," he answered. "I lived on Center Street about ten blocks from your house. My mother had a shop there where she sewed for people—"

"Well, then, my aunts remember her!" Susan exclaimed, breaking in upon him. "When you first came to live with us they said they remembered a Mrs. Sholes who had been a dressmaker in our neighborhood years ago. And Uncle Worthy remembered that she moved away."

Allen nodded his head, his eyes straight ahead of him as if he were thinking of something that took him far away from Susan.

"That was when she was first taken sick," he said presently. "She had lung trouble. First we went up to Saranac and a year afterward we went out to New Mexico to live.

"Last Fall she died," he continued after a second's pause. "We never cared much for the west, she and I. And as soon as she was gone, I couldn't stand it. So I came back here. I have some friends here, and I'd always thought of this town—this neighborhood, in particular—as home, somehow." If a grown man six feet tall and proportionately broad of shoulder can be called wistful, Allen was wistful then.

"Do any of your family live here?" Susan asked, thinking of the kind of welcome he had received at the house in Center Street—the part of town that he had always thought of as home.

"No. My father and mother separated when I was about six years old. He lives out in Oregon somewhere. I never hear from him."

Father Penn's Draft Won't Bust the Bank

THE customers of the farm relief bank are drawing their 1933 farm relief funds, and Father Penn seems a bit hurt that he gets so little while the patrons from out west and down south are receiving such generous checks. The relief plan seems designed to help farmers about everywhere except in Pennsylvania.

The Newspaper As An Advertising Medium

Newspaper advertising produces immediate action. Speed distinguishes a newspaper's birth, life and functions.

Newspaper advertising tells where to buy. It never lets a prospect get cold.

Newspaper advertising enables the advertiser to check results. He knows what he gets for his newspaper advertising dollar anywhere and everywhere he elects to advertise.

Newspaper advertising costs less than any other kind.

Newspaper advertising insures dealer good-will. You do not have to sell local newspaper advertising to the retailer, he knows what it will do for him.

The newspaper advertiser selects his markets and "Goes where the going is good."

Newspaper advertising is timely. It permits the advertiser to tie his copy up with current news events. "Newsvertising" is a product of the ability to spot copy quickly.

Newspaper advertising enlists many aids to distribution. There is no source of information as thoroughly informed on any given market as the newspaper that serves that market.

Each good newspaper fits its market as a key fits a lock; knows its market like a book; serves it with zeal and pride.

CONSHOHOCKEN ACES TO PLAY ST. ANN'S HERE

St. Ann's A. A. will have one of its finest attractions of the season on its gridiron tomorrow afternoon when the Bristol eleven meets the strong Conshohocken Aces, who represent the borough which name they carry. The "Saints" are going after their third straight victory.

The Conshohocken team is well versed in the art of handling the pigskin. They recently defeated the Saratoga team, 12-6. The Saratoga team was barely nosed out for the Philadelphia Tournament championship last season while they won in 1932. The team is composed of mostly graduates from the Conshohocken High School and weigh in the vicinity of 165 pounds.

The Bucks County champions are greatly hampered by the injury list. Last week, "Boops" Niccols, Tony DiMassio, and "Teddy" Tosti were added to this column, and with Ray Pico, "Tink" Spadaccino, and Tommy Barrett already on, the team is greatly weakened. Several players are nursing minor injuries and are receiving treatments from Trainer Johnny Straffe. Almost every night Trainer Straffe has a few players reporting to him for treatment and it is hoped that these players will be ready for action Sunday.

Coach Seneca is hopeful for a St. Ann's victory. He held practice twice this week and drilled his players on several new plays. Coach Seneca was satisfied with the playing of the squad last week and appeared pleased during the practice session. He knows that injuries will hold back the club but has confidence in the players who will fill in the injured players' places.

The St. An's starting line-up will be as follows: Ends, Tulio and Court; tackles, Kornstedt and D. Seneca; guards, Angelo and Spadaccino; center, Oriola; halfbacks, Tershon and Bornice; quarterback, Misera; fullback, Galione. There is a possibility that Tulio may be shifted to a tackle position during the game while Esposito takes one of the end positions.

Conshohocken will have as its starting line-up: Wesley and Moore, ends; T. Bolton and Boots, tackles; Bean and Novak, guards; J. Bolton, center; Spivis, quarterback; Pitt and Butler, halfbacks; Black, fullback.

On next Sunday the St. Ann's team will play Lambertville.

Kick-off tomorrow takes place at three o'clock.

HAVE SUPPER

A covered dish supper conducted by the Women's Home Missionary Society in the banquet hall of Bristol M. E. Church, Thursday evening, was attended by 27, including members and guests.

The excellent menu was followed by a business meeting, over which Mrs. William Betz presided.

EDDINGTON TROJANS TO PLAY FRANKFORD

EDDINGTON, Oct. 20—The Eddington Trojans will attempt to keep their record clean tomorrow when they play the Lower Frankford team on their home field, Bristol Pike and Street Road.

The visitors come to Eddington with a credible record and the Trojans re taking no chances by preparing for their toughest game of the season. If they are to win this game much improvement must be shown on the offense, especially within the wenty yard line where the going is the toughest. However, this improvement is expected and if the defense holds up as it has thus far, a very close and interesting game should result. The following squad may be seen in action: ends, James, Lake, Myers, Baines; tackles, Conn, Irvin, Jobson, Forester; guards, Charles Davis, Bud Davis, Bellerby, Barth; centers, English and Soorosen; backs, Crossley, Dibs, Kutzer, Hughes, Leighton, Curry and Collins.

High School Eleven Ready For Opponents

(By Jack Orr)

The Bristol High School "Bunnies" will be fighting to defend a tradition when they clash with Upper Moreland eleven on the high school gridiron this afternoon.

NEEDS SAFE KEEPING

SENECA, Kan. — (INS) — The recent drought wreaked such havoc on the 200-acre farm of Joseph Rettele that he was able to store his entire corn crop in a small tin safety deposit box.

High School Prank Causes Annoyance

A practical joker, last night, caused considerable annoyance and also embarrassment to a number of motorists.

The high school football team distributed cards to advertise the game to be played here today.

The card read:

"Department of Public Pleasure, of Bristol, Pa. The attention of the owner of this car is arrested and this will serve to notify you that you are violating the law of entertainment and sports if you fail to be with the crowd to see the game of football, Bristol vs. Upper Moreland, at Bristol, Saturday, October 20, 1934, at 2.15 p. m. The Bristol Cadets will parade on the field."

The practical joker tore the card in two and stuck the upper portion in the automobiles, writing on the back of the card, "Report at Police Station." The motorist, returning to his car and confronted with the card, in a number of instances didn't stop to read it, but reported immediately to the police station.

The police were surprised at first until they learned what was being done. Then the officers were instructed to keep watch for those doing it, and to "bring them in."

Reed and Schnader Predict Smashing Victory for Party

Schnader took several sharp digs at Guffey and Earle, the heads of the Democratic State ticket. He criticized, by inference, the labor record of Earle, who, he intimated, is ineligible to take the oath of office of Governor.

Referring to Guffey, Schnader declared that no nominee on the Republican State ticket has ever been indicted for embezzlement.

"Many unkind things have been said against me in the heat of the campaign," he declared. "Repeatedly, friends have urged me to reply to these bitter, personal words. They have said to me: 'You know they are not true. Brand him as a truth-twister.'

"I have not done so for two reasons.

"First, I am trying to demonstrate to the people of Pennsylvania my qualifications for Governor, not my qualifications as a hurler of slanderous brickbats.

"Second, I do not believe the opponent who has said those things actually said them of his own volition. He repeatedly has proved during the campaign that he is unfamiliar with what he is saying. I believe he said these unkind words because they were in speeches which someone else had written for him.

"The reason I have not engaged in mud slinging is not because there is no mud to throw. It would be a question of which mud to throw first. Certainly no nominees of the Republican ticket have ever been indicted for embezzlement."

Grid Stars to Shine in Saturday's Big Battles

Fordham vs. St. Mary's at New York, Tulane and Georgia at New Orleans, and Chicago's meeting with Indiana at Chicago, are among the football classics being dished out next Saturday for the grid fans. These stars of the east, west and south will be in the midst of things.

Tiny's Titans

By BURNLEY

© 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved.

RUMORS have been rife this fall that a super-team is being moulded at Tiny Thornhill's Palo Alto farm, and already the cry "Beware of Stanford" is being heard throughout the football world.

Last year's sensational sophomore team was headed for national championship recognition until the Rose Bowl debacle blasted their dreams, and with added experience the soph stars of 1933 will be doubly dangerous this season.

On paper, the big Red machine looks like the class of the coast, and possibly the top team of the nation. The Stanford backfield should be sensational. Alustiza, Van Dellen, Hamilton and Grayson certainly are a sweet quartet of backfield beauties, and besides their natural talent, they have profited greatly by the invaluable coaching of Ernie Nevers, Thornhill's assistant mentor at the "Farm."

Grayson and Hamilton, in particular, are tabbed as leading all-American prospects. The first-named star was acknowledged to be all-America timber by every critic who saw him in action last season; he is one of the hardest hitting fullbacks since Nevers. Hamilton is a terrific blocking back, as well as a genuine offensive threat.

The line behind which these high stepping backs will function is a veritable stone wall, and figures to be one of the best in the country. At left end is "Monk" Moscrip, who, according to coast critics, is headed for all-American honors. He shines on the defense and will also take Al Norgard's place as chief pass-snatcher this year.

Grayson, Hamilton and Moscrip are Stanford's Big Three. Probably no other team in the country can boast of three such outstanding stars.
